Forming Compound Subjects and Predicates

The homework half of the lesson. Circle the joined words, name the kind, then fold and write your own.

Part A — Find both

_____ / 6

Each sentence has two or three words that were joined together. Circle every one of them, not just the first.

1. Dell and his brother carry the crates inside. compound subject
2. The honey seller labels each jar and stacks them in rows. compound predicate
3. Brown eggs and fresh butter sit in the cooler by the door. compound subject
4. A farmer in a blue cap weighs the beans and writes the price. compound predicate
5. A flat tire or a late start costs Rosa the best corner. compound subject
6. The children pick a melon, thump it twice, and set it down. compound predicate

Part B — Which kind?

_____ / 6

Nothing is marked for you. Decide which half got joined, then circle it.

1. Dell and his brother open the gate at six.
   This sentence has a compound subject or compound predicate
2. The honey seller wipes the jars and lines them up.
   This sentence has a compound subject or compound predicate
3. A broken scale or a missing price tag slows the whole line.
   This sentence has a compound subject or compound predicate
4. The farmer loads his truck and drives to the next town.
   This sentence has a compound subject or compound predicate
5. Apples, pears and late plums crowd the end of the table.
   This sentence has a compound subject or compound predicate

6. The dog sniffs every basket but never takes anything.

   This sentence has a compound subject or compound predicate

Part C — Fold them together

____ / 3

Fold each set into one sentence. Say what is the same in all of them, keep that part once, and join what is different.

1. The gate opens at seven.
   The gate closes at noon.

   All of it in one sentence _____

2. Dell packs the truck.
   Rosa packs the truck.

   All of it in one sentence _____

3. The bread sells out by nine.
   The peaches sell out by nine.
   The sweet corn sells out by nine.

   All of it in one sentence _____

Part D — Write your own

____ / 2

Now your own. Write the sentence on the first line, then write the joined words underneath it.

1. A sentence with a compound subject _____

   The two subjects _____

2. A sentence with a compound predicate _____

   The two predicates _____

Total _____ / 17

Answer key

Part A — the words that should be circled.

1. Dell · brother
2. labels · stacks
3. eggs · butter
4. weighs · writes
5. tire · start
6. pick · thump · set

Part B

1. compound subject
2. compound predicate
3. compound subject
4. compound predicate
5. compound subject
6. compound predicate

Part C

1. The gate opens at seven and closes at noon.
2. Dell and Rosa pack the truck. (pack, not packs, now that it is two people)
3. The bread, the peaches and the sweet corn sell out by nine.

Part D — answers vary. Look for two words joined by and, or or but, and check the verb on the compound subject one: two people take sell, not sells. A sentence that merely uses the word and somewhere is not enough, because the join has to be between two subjects or between two predicates.

Read your own sentence out loud. If you had to say a word twice, it belongs to the part that gets joined.
